

Rustic Lanna dining in a rice barn

It's been described as the ultimate evening of exotic, rustic style dining and this 1 to 31 August is the perfect time to find out why. Dinner is served in an open air, straw roof sala in the resort's rice fields reached along a torch lit pathway. Guests are seated at a long teak wood dining table, as delicious dishes are prepared at nearby stations made of wood and mud, including a Lanna charcoal stove.

Many of the food containers and cooking utensils are of natural materials such as clay, wood and banana leaves... all adding to the quaint rustic atmosphere. Sounds from outside the sala, like cascading water from the rice fields, further enhance the magical evening. Price is THB 5,800 + + per person (please note a minimum of eight persons is required and 24 hour advance reservation is recommended).
