Interior Designer

The architect of the project is Pascal Despez while the Gilles & Boissier agency has overseen the design of the lobby, public spaces, villas, suites, spa, restaurants and bar.

Setting

With the snow-capped Atlas Mountains forming a breathtaking backdrop, Mandarin Oriental, Marrakech is surrounded by majestic gardens filled with olive trees and more than 100,000 fragrant roses.

Accommodation

54 private villas of between 280-440 m² with one or two bedrooms, a pool, hot tub and outdoor shower. Surrounded by a private garden, these cosy living spaces also feature outdoor dining.

Seven suites of between 135-210 m² with terrace, heated plunge pool and exceptional views of the Atlas Mountains.

Two Infinity Pool Suites of 290 m² with a large private courtyard featuring an 18m-long heated infinity pool.

Restaurants and Bar

The resort's four restaurants and bars offer innovative and diverse culinary concepts, including the signature address Mes'Lalla, plus Le Salon Berbere, the Pool Garden and the new Ling Ling by Hakkasan.

In-villa dining is also available 24 hours a day.

The Spa

The Spa at Mandarin Oriental, Marrakech is spread over 1,800 m² and features six spa suites including one for couples. Each suite has a terrace and private garden for outdoor treatments. The Spa also includes two luxurious hammams, an indoor heated pool, a fitness centre and a yoga studio, as well as hair and beauty salons.

Golf

In 2015, Marrakech was named Best Golf Destination in Africa by the global trade association of the golf tourism industry, IAGTO. Guests of Mandarin Oriental, Marrakech enjoy direct access to the Golf Royal and Golf Al Maaden courses, while the Amelkis course is also nearby.

Meeting and Function Rooms

Mandarin Oriental, Marrakech offers 500 square-meters of meeting spaces, including one plenary room, two breakout rooms and a beautiful terrace overlooking the resort's gardens. The resort's indoor areas can be configured to accommodate all types of private events, while the gardens can host up to 1,000 guests. The catering service combined with the enchanting evening lighting creates a magical ambience, as seen at the Dior party organised for the Marrakech Film Festival in December 2014.

Younger Guests

Mandarin Oriental, Marrakech offers dedicated services for children and teenagers, including special menus in all restaurants, baby equipment and a babysitting service, as well as a large variety of traditional and electronic games.

Pending the opening of the Kids Club, children's activities are organised for children during the All Saints, Christmas and Easter holidays.
