AN OVERVIEW OF MANDARIN ORIENTAL, PARIS

A truly Parisian, twenty-first century Palace

Mandarin Oriental, Paris is Mandarin Oriental Hotel Group's first address in France, at the heart of this fashion capital and with the Garnier Opera, Tuileries Gardens and the Louvre all close by. Mandarin Oriental, Paris is a modern Palace housed inside an historic Art Deco building that comes alive with unique character. Everything about this elegant hotel says 'Paris', from its sense of style to the immediate sense of belonging, and of luxury to be enjoyed. Comfort meets modern in a hotel that is infused with a subtle air of exoticism and romance, making every stay a singular experience.

The hotel brings together the foremost international names in architecture and design. The architect Jean-Michel Wilmotte has supervised renovation of the building, its facade and patio, in consultation with landscape design agency Neveux-Rouyer. Sybille de Margerie of SM Design imagined the interior design and decoration of the rooms, suites, Spa and public spaces while Agence Jouin-Manku lent its talent to the bar and restaurants.

Paris has countless surprises in store...

Only when visitors step through the entrance porch and into the majestic lobby do they discover the true magic of Mandarin Oriental, Paris. A shimmering jewel of stone, lacquer and gold leaf. Noble materials in a couture style; bold colours in a subtle harmony of grey, plum, rose, mauve and ecru. A green haven where Nature penetrates the interior, and butterflies flutter and perch. Some are embroidered on cushions, or made from crystal and ceramic in an installation by the sculptor Marcello Lo Giudice. Others are printed or painted, embodying Nature's delicate enchantment which floats in the air.
