GREEN TEA

SUPERIOR GYOKURO | Shizuoka, Japan
2 Brews

125

The flavours of this tea are velvety, deep, and rich in umami, with a smoky savoury finish.

As little as 25 kilograms of this highly sought after, premium Gyokuro are harvested each year, a product of the Mori family in Japan.

An ancient, pre-Gyokuro harvesting technique results in a distinctive, umami-rich flavor and full-bodied texture.

For 20 days, a mat shades and covers the leaves. By kneading and twisting the leaves, amino acids are released, making the tea rich and powerful.

Ostentatious in Japanese, our superior Gyokuro is served in a wine glass in order to optimize its essence, aroma, and experience.

CEREMONIAL GRADE MATCHA | Yame, Japan
1 Brew

Exceptional ceremonial grade matcha from Yame, Fukuoka Prefecture, it is made from spring shaded tea leaves that contain the highest levels of amino acids and theanine, which contribute to its sweet and umami taste.

With its nutty almond notes and long-lasting sweetness, it is easy to whisk into a smooth foam.

The ceremonial grade Matcha was initially used only by monks, royalty, and samurai. To revere this superfood, Japan conducts a full ceremony.

PU'ER TEA

295

18 YEARS VINTAGE RAW PU'ER ARBOR CHARM |
Yunnan, China
8 Brews

The texture of this tea is soothing and balanced as a result of it being authentically aged. Long and refreshing with a delicate sweetness that can be brewed up to eight times.

The Tan dynasty references Pu'Er tea in ancient Chinese literature.

The value of this tea increases with age. Monks' diets lacked plant-based elements, which this tea provided. It was traded for horses.

To transport more tea on each horse during the six-week journey from China to Tibet, the tea was compressed into discs. There are only a few hundred Arbor trees left in Northern Yunnan, resulting in this historic 18-year-old Arbor Charm.

This historic tea tree is considered to be the most valuable and precious in existence. Arbor Charm Pu'Er tea is authentically pried on a wooden tray with a sharp needle according to the climatic conditions in Malaysia. Each brew reveals new flavours.

BLACK TEA

YUAN MANDARIN | Guangxi, China
8 Brews

350

This ancient Chinese tea is encased in a rare mandarin fruit named Chen Pi that is enriched with vitamins. There are multiple meanings associated with the word "Yuan" in China.

It is a full-bodied beverage with a warm consistency, smoky honey flavours, and a subtle and sharp citrus finish.

Within the Chen Pi is our divine Liu Bao tea, a black tea from Guangxi province in south-west China. Drinking Guangxi Liu Bao tea relieved inflammation and rheumatism among miners during the 1970s. Known for its abundant health benefits, this unique combination has been handcrafted to provide natural health from ancient Chinese remedies.

The tea is brewed by cracking the dried mandarin open with a nut-cracker to release its flavours.

OOLONG TEA

NEW ZEALAND OOLONG | Gordonton, New Zealand 125
1 Brew

This tea has a creamy, rich, velvety texture with citrus undertones and long notes of honey and lily flower.

In the 1990's, tea farming pioneer Mr. Chen emigrated from Taiwan to New Zealand.

In his native country, Taiwan, formerly known as Formosa, the home of the famous Formosa Oolong, Mr. Chen observed similarities between the terroir of New Zealand and that of Taiwan.

Authentic Taiwanese techniques are used to roll and knead this tea to create cylinder-shaped New Zealand oolong tea balls that capture its robust flavour when brewed.

A limited and rare delight from the North Island of New Zealand, with less than 100kg cultivated every year.
