The name Uluwatu comes from ulu, meaning “land’s end”, and watu, meaning “rock” and the property’s namesake certainly captures the essence of the cliff-top views that make this home so special. Uluwatu Estate was constructed by its owners as a labour of love after they were inspired to create the perfect frame for the spectacular views. The expansive estate epitomises indoor-outdoor living with open-air living areas, immaculate gardens and reflection pools connecting the eight independent suites. The thoughtful design pays homage to modern aesthetics, luxury and comfort whilst capturing the essence of Balinese style.

Bali is a destination offering numerous styles of holiday, from partying to cultural exploration or health and fitness, and Uluwatu Estate is equipped to cater to all. Wellness is a strong theme on the island and between the estate’s own private spa and team of on-call yoga instructors, those seeking a luxurious retreat will not be disappointed. Surfers will appreciate the impressive breaks at Blue Point Beach, Padang Padang Right and Canggu which are all within easy reach. The estate can arrange private candle-lit dinners on the beach or transport guests to one of the many renowned beach clubs nearby.

Chef Eco, the estate’s head chef, designs delightful daily menus tailored to guest preferences and inspired by local produce. The estate’s professional and experienced staff, from bartender to chauffeur, all exude famous Balinese charm.

“We are thrilled that Uluwatu Estate has been selected as the first Mandarin Oriental Exclusive Home in Asia-Pacific. Our team is very much looking forward to creating memorable Balinese experiences in keeping with legendary Mandarin Oriental hospitality for all our future guests,” said Renee Zecha, owner of Uluwatu Estate.
