GUEST ROOMS AT MANDARIN ORIENTAL, TOKYO

GUEST ROOMS: The 179 oversized guest rooms of Mandarin Oriental, Tokyo, which occupies the nine uppermost floors of the Nihonbashi Mitsui Tower, reside within the 30th to 36th floors of the building. The luxurious exceptionally detailed, posh rooms and suites have been designed to exude harmony and serenity, and set a contemporary mood that simultaneously reflects Japan’s timeless artisanship.

All guests are afforded spectacular, sweeping views from some of the largest guest rooms in Japan. East-facing rooms look out over the Sumida River, Tokyo Bay, Odaiba and TOKYO SKYTREE, the world’s highest free-standing broadcasting tower, while those facing west permit views of Ginza, Tokyo Station and the towering skyscrapers of Shinjuku. On clear days, the majestic, snow-capped Mount Fuji can be seen in the distance.

DESIGN CONCEPT: Mandarin Oriental hotels are built on the cornerstone philosophy of ‘Sense of Place’, and created to reflect the very best of the city in which they are located. The extraordinary design of Mandarin Oriental, Tokyo brings to the historical and cultural district of Nihonbashi a sophisticated, opulent space that reflects the unique Japanese sense of the four seasons and love of nature.

Inspired by the main themes of ‘Woods and Water,’ the hotel has been conceived as a single, large, living tree, with the guestrooms as branches. These themes are expressed using original materials and evocative motifs on everything from wall treatments, carpets, and fabrics, to screens and furniture. In keeping with traditional Japanese aesthetics, no single object has been created to stand alone, rather, all elements come together congruously to form a whole.

A significant renovation of all rooms and suites was completed in 2019. The makeover draws on Japan’s rich culture, to provide guests with a strong “sense of place”.
